Software License and Title

3.1 Title to any physical equipment and risk of loss or damage to it shall pass to Customer at the products' manufacturing location, immediately upon delivery to a suitable carrier, subject to Company's security interest in such products as described below.

3.2 Software License – All Software or company intellectual property rights provided under this Agreement is licensed, not sold. Upon execution of a Quote/Order by American Tel-A-Systems, Inc. and subject to compliance with this Agreement, Company grants to Customer under this Agreement a non-transferable license to use and to allow its Permitted Users to use or access the Software described in the Quote/Order in object code form only. The License granted is up to the maximum number of Designated Users identified on the Quote/Order and is only for internal use by Customer and Permitted Users for Customer's business operations. In no way does the License grant the Customer and its Permitted Users the right to grant sub-licenses or authorizations, whether exclusive or non-exclusive, to third parties for access to or use of the Software. This License is effective until terminated. The License will terminate immediately, without notice from Company, if Customer fails to comply with any material provision of this Agreement. Upon termination, Customer must destroy or return the Software and all copies thereof.

3.3 Software License Limitations. Customer and its Permitted Users shall not: (1) adapt the Software or create derivative versions of the Software; (ii) transmit, distribute or supply, whether by rental, sale, licensure, loan, or any other mechanism, partially or in full, the Software to any third party; (iii) rework the Software (e.g. for the purpose of correcting deficiencies) or make additions or improvements to the Software; (iv) reverse engineer the Software or attempts to derive source code from the Software; (v) alter or modify the Documentation; (vi) use the Software to provide support to or a service to any third party; (vii) copy the Software for any reason (including in a virtual environment, creating a test environment, redundant environment, for disaster recovery purposes, or replication of the Software, except to the extent Company has given prior written consent to Customer to copy the Software or the Customer has licensed additional copies of the Software for the above purposes; (viii) remove or alter any of the confidential, proprietary or intellectual property rights notices(s) embedded in or that Company otherwise provides with the Software; or (ix) simultaneously use the same User ID (profile) on more than one computer terminal or access point. The License is contingent upon full payment for the Software in accordance with the Payment terms section of the Quote/Order form and will terminate without notice if full payment is not made.
